BERTHA BALLARD HOME

MEMORIAL APARTMENT HOUSE FOR BUSINESS GIRLS.

It Will Be Formally Opened About June 20-Selection of Memorial Rooms.

The new apartment house at 411 North Delaware street, to be known as th "Bertha Ballard," built by William H Ballard as a home for homeless business and office girls as a memorial to his daughter, will be turned over to the board of managers within a week for the furnishing. There are thirty sleeping rooms in the building, two parlors, library, dining room and other rooms necessary to make a complete home for its future occupants. A number of rooms have been set aside for memorial purposes, and those who choose are taking them at $50 apiece. Mr. Ballard has taken two in memory of his daughter; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Furnas, one in memory of their daughter; A. K. Hollowell, one; Albert Dixon, one; the children of D. B. Harvey, one, for their mother; one in memory of Annie B. Richie by her children; Plainfield Friends' Church, one; Indianapolis Friends' Church, one; Friends' Christian Endeavor, one; Roberts Park Church, one; Mrs. Cassity, of Dunlap, Ill. one; Mrs. James E. Shover, one; Friends of

These rooms will be named after the persons in whose memory they are taken, and it is the desire of the management to main tain an individuality throughout the building, if possible. The parlors and dining rooms can also be taken, and Mrs. Rose E. Brown, president of the board of managers, has already received requests for information regarding them. Gifts of furniture are desired, and, while the board will buy great deal of the furnishings, persons will be permitted to provide everything for a

The sleeping rooms will be furnished with wo single iron bedsteads, and there will e a closet for each girl. The rest of the furniture will be all that is desired to make a comfortable room. The cost will be reduced to a minimum, the purpose being to charge only enough to pay running expenses. Many applications have already been received, and the girls who are now living at 211 East New York street, a similar home under the same management, will be transferred to the new place. It is the intention to formally open the building about June 20, and at that time it is thought that many books will be received

OF EXCEPTIONS BILL

FURTHER LITIGATION IN THE VAN-DALIA CLAIM CASE.

The Bill Filed in Jrage Carter's Court -T. C. Whiteomb's Claim-Other Court Cases.

A bill of exceptions was filed in Judge Carter's court yesterday by the defendant to the finding of Noble C. Butler, special master in the case of the State of Indiana by William A. Ketcham, attorney general, against the Terre Haute & Indianapolis Railway Company for the collection of $2,000,000 due the State. The exceptions set out that the master erred in stating that the sum invested from 1856 to 1869 was $256,799.14, when it should have been $1,-489,629.27; that $149,577.58 discount and interest excluded in the report should have been included as sums invested; that $819,163.19 invested in construction in 1869 to 1892 should not have been excluded; that the sum plus 10 per cent. should have been, on July 17, 1873, $6,550,399.12 instead of $4,663,-638.50; that stocks and dividends of $210,600 and $376,700 should have been excluded and that the aggregate amount of dividends up to July 17, 1873, should have been found and stated as $3,752,974.98. Exceptions are also taken in that the master erred in not considering decisions from the Owen Circuit Court and the Marion County Superior Court in which the defendant asserts all claims were ajudicated.

T. C. WHITCOMB'S MONEY

Is Tied Up in the Eureka Association Receivership.

T. C. Whitcomb filed a petition in Judge Carter's court yesterday asking that the court's order for a distribution of the funds of the Eureka Savings and Loan Association, in the hands of a receiver, be suspended. He was the former secretarytreasurer, and alleges that the association is indebted to him to the amount of $5,406.96 for money loaned to the associaone-year guaranteed gent's or lady's Bicycle; tion to keep it from becoming insertion sent to any address in the United States on ten In the hearing of his intervening petition days' free trial, payable after received. Whitcomb was not made a creditor in the distribution ordered, and sets out that if the dividend is declared the funds will all be paid out, and he will lose his money. He asks that he share equally with the other creditors.

RYAN'S DAMAGE SUIT.

He Claims He Lost $9,000 Through Restraining Order.

Mansur Hall, corner of Alabama and Washington streets, Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, and Monday and Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. William H. Ryan filed an amended complaint, yesterday, in his suit against the Indianapolis Union Railway Company and William T. Cannon, in which he asks for $9,000 damages. He alleges that Sept. 28, CINCINNATI, HAMILTON & INDIANAP. 1893, at the instance of the defendants, a restraining order was issued in the Circuit Court to prevent him from carrying on a business at the Union Station, or allowing his vehicles to stand in front of the building. He says the restraining order was in force from that date till July 3, 1897, when it was dissolved. Awaiting a decision of a similar case in the Supreme Court judgment was withheld, and Sept. 12, 899, a decision was given in his favor. He alleges that in the time he was not allowed o carry on business at the Union Station ne was damaged in the sum asked.

DAVID ROOKER'S COMPLAINT.

He Secks Salary as Sheriff of the Appellate Court.

David Rooker filed a brief in the Superior Court yesterday in the case of David Roach as sheriff of the Supreme Court, to collect fees and salary as sheriff of the Appellate Court. The brief says that the Legislature appropriated $500 a year for sheriff of the Appellate Court, but as the court was created for only six years no provision was made for the salary of officers with it. The brief cites law which provides that the "clerk and sheriff of the Supreme Court shall act as clerk and sheriff, respectively, of the Appellate Court." The brief holds that the fees attached to the office are less han one hundred dollars a year and that by the appropriation of $500 a year salary it was the intention of the Legislature that it should be continued.

Irvington Improvement Case.

Argument was heard by the three Su perior Court judges, in Room 1, yesterday, on the demurrer to the complaint of William C. Smith against Oliver P. Hay and his wife, and also the case of William C Smith against James Stevenson and oth ers for the payment for the improvement of Washington street through Irvington The claim against Hay is for $977.24 and against Stevenson for $297.04. It is set out in the demurrers that the contract was let to John Moore, April 4, 1898, and July 22, 1898, it was assigned to Smith. The contention is that the assessment is in excess of the benefits derived and that any foreclosure proceeding is the taking of property without just compensation, and, therefore, is unconstitutional.

Trolley Rope About His Neck.

Edwin R. Nowland sued the Indianapolis Street-railway Company yesterday for 5.000 damages. He alleges that as he was standing on the rear platform of an East Tenth-street car, Dec. 21, 1899, on East Tenth street, the trolley ran off and in some manner the trolley rope, as it was jerked up, wound about his neck. He asserts that he was pulled upward and thrown against the back of the platform with such violence as to bruise his back and severely strain his neck. He claims to be permanently injured.

Damage Suit Transferred.

The case of George A. Rubush, of Indianapolis, vs. Swift & Co., of Chicago, was transferred yesterday from the Marion Superior Court to the Federal Court. Rubush alleges in his complaint that, while he was crossing the West Washington street bridge over White river, he was knocked down and run over by a wagon belonging to Swift & Co., and thereby sustained serious injuries. He asks for $5,000

For the Defendant.

The suit of Louis Perlin, by his father, Moses Perlin, as next friend, against Mary Farman for $5,000 damages was decided by Judge Allen yesterday in favor of the de fendant. Louis Perlin is two years old, and it was alleged, because of negligence on the part of Mary Farman, in whose property Perlin lived, the child fell into a vault on account of the building being in

A Dog Caused the Damage.

John M. Whitesell brought suit against Daniel Herbine yesterday for $2,500 damages. He alleges that April 5, as he was riding on Capitol avenue with his brothern-law, Herbine's dog ran into the street barking at their horse, which caused it to run away. The buggy was upset, and Whitesell was thrown out, sustaining a broken collar bone.

Receiver Borrows Money.

Charles A. Bookwalter, receiver of the MacDaniel Printing Company, yesterday, was granted permission by Judge Leathers to borrow $350 to pay for labor at the ant. The receiver showed that there was but $1.45 in the treasury, and that it was necessary to pay the labor so that work

The graduating class numbered sixteen girls, who wore gowns which they fashioned themselves, doing all the drafting and cutting and fitting. The dresses were simple and pretty, of blue figured cloth, with ribbon belt and collars finished with a bow at the side. The girls who graduated were: Grace Lacy, Alta Ertle, Anna Zollers, Clara Winkleman, Nellie Raugh, Mary Baggott, Blanch Genusta Gainsporough, Agnes O Co nell, Ida Leavitt, Louise Gregory, Fern Hagerman, Rose Faker and Veronica hoenig. Prizes were awarded to Mary Lagg for the best sewing, a Baxter Bible to Lillie Roder for the best test work, picture; to Stella Males for the greatest improvement, a silver set, including knife fork and spoon, and to Rose Meo for the best buttonholes, a work box. One hundred and twenty-five girls received books for regular attendance at the school. The graduating class received as their diplomas a complete system of cutting and drafting. These girls entered the school, most of them unable to thread a needle and now they are able to cut and fit a dress, as well as draft one. Mrs. Alice Fleming Evans trained and directed the children's chorus, which sang several selections to Mr. Charles Hansen's accompaniment. Rev. R. V. Hunter addressed the children and told them they ought to be very grateful to the teachers who worked so faithfully during the year to teach them useful things and that they should appreciate the teachers' work and be obedient and kind, not only to their teachers, but at home as well. He interspersed his talk with amusing stories and was heartily applauded at the close. WORK FOR A YEAR. Report of the State Fee and Salary

Commission.

The State Fee and Salary Commission has completed the report that will form the basis for its recommendations to the next General Assembly, and the same has been filed with Governor Mount. The report contains 326 typewritten pages and represents the work of the commission for a year in the collection of data from the various countles of the State. In the introduction there is a compari son of the fee and salary systems of fortyfive States with the system of Indiana.

There is also a complete explanation of the line of investigation the committee has pursued. Under the head of per diem allowances a specific analysis of the figures by counties relative to the compensation of county officers is made. A widespread demand is noted, the report says, for the abolition of the per diem system, and for the establishment of a salary system generally throughout the public service of the State.

Ringling Bros.' popular "World's Greatest Shows" will exhibit in Indianapolis Wednesday, June 20. The press agent says: "It is needless to say that this will be an amusement event of the first importance Ringling Bros.' circus is not only the largest arenic institution in the entire world, but it is also the most colossal traveling exhibition ever organized, either in ancient or modern times. In novelty, in up-to-date uniqueness, in the sumptuousness of its displays, in the beauty of its matchless horses, in the number of its high-priced performers, in the wealth of its pageantry and in the generosity of everything that goes to make up a superlatively great exhibition, it has no equal on earth. Other shows have endeavored to imitate it, but never with success. It has an individuality all its own-a distinctiveness that gives it a recognized character for originality all over the land. It has repeatedly been said, and with truth, that Ringling Bros. have founded a new school of American showmen, but it is a school which has no successful pupils. To announce the coming of this great show is sufficient to insure public attention. The pictured presentment of the five famous Ringling Brothers upon an advertisement is an absolute guarantee of perfection in arenic amusement. Unlike other circus managers, Ringling Bros. are never content to rest upon their laurels. The present season has witnessed a notable increase in the magnitude of the show, as well as a most unprecedented gathering of American double stages, aerial spaces and huge fourth-mile track are fairly alive with diverting performances, of a character never before seen with any arenic exhibition. The most thrilling mid-air exploits the most graceful of lady and gentlemen riders, the most astonishingly expert acrobats, vie in interest with the most sensational and wonder-creating exhibitions of trained animal intelligence. Surely the world has never seen anything to compare with the marvelous Lockhart elephant actors. Marchand's pugllistic probiscidians. or Herr Souder's elephant brass band. Any one of these newly-imported great features would be sufficient to stamp a show with merit and distinction. Equally remarkable is O'Brien's sixty-one horse act-over three score high-bred equines all performing in one ring at one time, under the direction of a single trainer. A superb menagerie and a most exciting reproduction of the MacAdams, whose mandarin costume was very picturesque. He used a genuine Chinese instrument, imported from the Celestial kingdom by a local Chinaman. Such of the programme as was a repetition of Friday night's performance moved with smoothness and was warmly applauded. Although popular prices prevailed at the matinee, something over $150 was taken in at the boxoffice. penses of production.

Editor Smith, of the Kinsley Mercury. notes that when he first went to western Kansas, fourteen years ago, there was not a songbird in the region, unless the meadow lark, with its three unvarying notes, is made an exception. There were prairie chickens and plover and quail and the little brown buffalo bird, and these with the meadow lark formed about the whole feathered tribe of the West. "Little by little." says the editor, "as the country setlted and the trees became more numerous, they have ventured westward. What a joy it was the first morning we heard a mockingbird. Now they are plentiful and every orchard and grove has their nests and their brilliant vocalization may be heard almost anywhere. Last year, for the first time, the orioles, with their brilliant plumage and sweet voices, took up their permanent residence here, and this year they are thick. The bluejay that lusty vagabond of the woods, came soon after we did, and fought and quarreled and gossiped the summer through. Last year, too, the robin redbreast, the sweet, familiar figure of Eastern homesteads, ventured West, and his brilliant vest is common this year. "As the groves and orchards increase in number and size the feathered songsters will increase. Home is not home without their company, and, while they like fruit they like the enemies of fruit, and the small boy with his airgun should be forbidden to kill a single bird. No orchard, no home is complete without them. They mark the civilizing of this wild, new landthe taming of nature to the needs of man They mark the permanence of home here. and all those thinsg that have drawn our hearts to the old country 'back East.'

WIVES OF CONSULS.

They Are Likely to Have a Very Dry and Unhappy Time. New York Evening Sun.

The American woman who regards a pos sible consular appointment to some foreign town as a fine thing for herself and family as well as for her husband makes a big mistake. A few favored spots offer special advantages to the American consul the majority offer a large number of disadvantages. These result not from the re-sponsibilities of such a position; they are out and out hardships, only to be realized after one has come face to face with them and is convinced that they are insuperable difficulties. For instance, in England, mos of the consular posts are in the heart of the manufacturing districts, and if there be anything deadlier and duller than a manufacturing district in England. Americans don't know it. The consul himself. he have the least interest in Uncle interests and in the other things that he has been placed there for, may get some satisfaction out of it; for the women of the family it is life well-nigh insupportable. Unlimited means (with which not all conculty. The provincial English are very, very provincial. Unlike London or their countrymen of larger growth, they still regard most of their American cousins with somewhat of suspicion. The inhabitants of an English manufacturing district are generally well-to-do, living in comfortable graystone, hedgerowed houses, but knowing almost nothing of the stirring world beyond those hedge rows, and, seemingly, not wanting to know anything. They call upon new neighbors, and, in a tentative way, invite them to tea and later to look over the photograph album. They dress in box coats and white straw sailor hats, and they are afraid of their own voices, particularly in laughing. That is the sort of people the wife and daughters of the ordinary American consul are thrown with. They it is upon whom they are de-pendent for "society." "When I thought," said one wife who had managed to live through such an experience, "of the happy little New England town we had left behind us, its woman's club, its young girls' cotillion classes, its book club, its afternoon teas and card parties, not to say dinners-and there was nothing provincial about those dinners-I pitied those poor, half starved, wholly blind English women more than tongue can tell. In our home town we thought nothing of running down to Boston two or three times a week and over to New York a dozen times a winter; ough this English town was neare to London than we were to Boston, I met women who had never been to London. An awful apathy, a deadly stagnation seemed to hold them all in thrall, and rise above it they couldn't. With all our other experience and native vivacity it was hard for us not to fall prey to it too. For myself, I didn't mind; four years of utter inertia was, in its way, welcome. But it wasn't in the least what I had expected or prepared for, and for my daughters ! could but feel it a deprivation. It was like taking a piece right out of their gay young lives and nothing in all the world could make it up to them. Consular life abroad may, indeed, be a change, but except at the

my own experience I can but regard it for

"You are well experienced in this world's affairs," I ventured. "What do you take to be the object of life? Money?"

"Individual happiness?" "Not wholly. Right action. A man should take a part in the affairs of his fellowmen and live up to the dictates of his conscience in acting. He should be of some use. If he has desires, all the better. A desire for anything that will help others and satisfy you is a good thing. A man has a right to desire money or place or public praise, but he has no right to any selfish feeling in the matter. He ought to desire to be liberal and earn his reward by service of some kind." "Do you think the world offers as much to individuals as it ever did?" "If we can trust history, it does. The literature of earlier times seems more complaining than our own. Men were just as dissatisfied a thousand years ago as they are now. Man seems always to have craved a great deal more than he could obtain Individually, I think, the age is richer with opportunities than former ages. The system under which we live is somewhat defective, and many suffer by it, but it is changing, and the world grows better. The unselfish man will find enough, I fancy, if he honestly fulfills his duty to his felcw-men. It is all a question of peace of mind, and that can be obtained in various ways-the best one, by doing right.

Christian Advocate. A week or so ago a woman in Topeka. Kan., who was under Christian science treatment for typhoid fever, did what was the most natural thing for one to do under such circumstances-she died. And now, it seems, the Masons of Topeka, who believe that every one, even a Christian scientist, has a right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," and who are so blind that they cannot see that there is blind that they cannot see that there is really no such thing as illness, are to vinced themselves and their patient that her trouble was purely imaginary. The Christian scientists, instead of essaying the general practice of healing, would do well to make a specialty of toothache and sar-sche. This would afford them ample scope
